Religious Ideology

The religious ideology in the BBB novel is so prominent, especially attached to the main characters such as Ayna, Gus Afif, Kiai Sobron and Mrs. Fauziyah. Religious values (Islam) such as obedience and prayer, can be found among them when Ayna Reading sholawat. Ayna read the sholawat while riding a motorcycle to be saved [2,p6]. In the ideology embraced by Ayna, sholawat is believed to have many virtues, for example, a form of obedience to God, salvation, and calmness. Ayna is well aware that in every activity there is a role God and needs to be remembered. In the ideology embraced by Ayna, views also emerged “who often remembers his God (Allah), so God will remember him”. Besides that, the words of the sholawat show the low heart shape of Ayna. Even though Ayna was able to drive a motorcycle without prayer, he still doesn't forget to pray. Ayna's religiosity eventually led to the kiai Sobron and and Mrs. Fauziyah wants to make her daughter-in-law. Kiai Sobron hopes that Ayna marries Guz Afif.

Client Patron Hegemony

The relationship between the santri and the kiai is patron-client. Santri obeys and respects the kiai. Relatively different from the relationship of students with teachers in formal schools. The kiai in the pesantren world have strong authority and charisma. Some santri (women) even hoped to be the kiai's daughter -in-law or wife. The position of the kiai, who is strong and above the santri, is a bargaining value for choosing santri to be his wife. It also appears in the BBB novel, when kiai Sobron asked Ayna to marry his son, Guz Afif. After divorcing Yoyok's first husband, Ayna met with Gus Afif. Kiai Sobron and Mrs. Fauziyah asked Ayna to be Gus Afif's wife, Ayna gladly accepted it. In this context, the position of the kiai Sobron, Mrs. Fauziyah became dominant (superior), while the position of Ayna (inferior) accepts voluntarily. Ayna, who was originally a santri and servant (khadim) at the pesantren owned by Kiai Sobron, now a part of his family. The dream that when a santri was fought for, finally came true.

Economic Hegemony and Status

Individuals who have economic capital and are supported by prestige, able to control other people. This was proven when Ayna first married Yoyok. Yoyok is a child of Kusmono legislative member (DPRD in Purwodadi) rich and famous. Ayna will initially be married to Gus Afif, son of Kiai Sobron, but uncle Darsono refused. Uncle Darsono more agree Ayna married Yoyok [2,p134]. In this context, those who were dominate and strong were Yoyok, Kusmono, and uncle Darsono. With the power of money and position, he was able to conquer Ayna and realize his will. Meanwhile, those who are hegemony (inferior) are Kiai Sobron, Mrs. Fauziyah, and Gus Afif. They have not been able to get Ayna. Ayna and Gus Afif live their lives and tests with patience. Their patience is sweet, after the two meet and get married.

4 Conclusion

The dominant ideology in the BBB novel is religion (Islam). The main figures Ayna and Gus Afif are religious female and male figures. They have obedient, smart, patient, and kind characters. Their ideology and character are the key to passing the life test. The two separated although they finally united (married). The same background of the pesantren makes both live peacefully and happily. In addition, novels that are made cannot be separated from the background of even the author's ideology. Habiburrahman is a figure who lives in a boarding school (pesantren) environment.
