

Retraction Notice: Analyzing and Detection of Human Emotion through Online Social Networks

G. Balamurugan<sup>1</sup>, M. Akhilandeswari Tulasi<sup>2</sup>, V.V.S.S. Sampath Kumar<sup>3</sup> and P.G. Om Prakash<sup>4</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Assistant Professor, Department of Computing Technologies, Faculty of Engineering and Technology, SRM Institute of Science and Technology, Kattankulathur 603203, Chengalpattu, Tamil Nadu, India

<sup>2</sup> UG Student, Department of Computational Intelligence, SRM Institute of Science and Technology, Kattankulathur 603203, Chengalpattu, Tamil Nadu, India

<sup>3</sup> UG Student, Department of Computing Technologies, SRM Institute of Science and Technology, Kattankulathur 603203, Chengalpattu, Tamil Nadu, India

<sup>4</sup> Assistant Professor Department of Computational Intelligence, Faculty of Engineering and Technology, SRM Institute of Science and Technology, Kattankulathur 603203, Chengalpattu, Tamil Nadu, India

Retracted article: E3S Web of Conferences 491, 03011 (2024), <https://doi.org/10.1051/e3sconf/202449103011>

Retracted article published online: 21 February 2024

We take a zero tolerance to any situation where fraudulent research is published in our journals. As a result, this article has been retracted by the Publisher because it is suspected to be a nonsensical computer-generated publication with a number of tortured phrases and irrelevant references.

Additional measures have been implemented to prevent these issues from reoccurring.

EDP Sciences is extremely grateful to anonymous whistleblowers and the Problematic Paper Screener [1] for bringing this case to our attention for further investigations.

Reference

[1] G. Cabanac, C. Labbé and A. Magazinov, Tortured phrases: A dubious writing style emerging in science. Evidence of critical issues affecting established journals. ArXiv, abs/2107.06751 (2021).